A Summary of Your Rights Under the Fair Credit Reporting Act

The federal Fair Credit Reporting Act (FCRA) promotes the accuracy, fairness, and privacy of information in the files of consumer reporting agencies. There are many types of consumer reporting agencies, including credit bureaus and specialty agencies (such as agencies that sell information about check writing histories, medical records, and rental history records). Here is a summary of your major rights under FCRA. For more information, including information about additional rights, go to www.consumerfinance.gov/learnmore (<http://www.consumerfinance.gov/learnmore>) or write to: Consumer Financial Protection Bureau, 1700 G Street N.W., Washington, DC 20552.

- You must be told if information in your file has been used against you. Anyone who uses a credit report or another type of consumer report to deny your application for credit, insurance, or employment – or to take another adverse action against you – must tell you, and must give you the name, address, and phone number of the agency that provided the information.
- You have the right to know what is in your file. You may request and obtain all the information about you in the files of a consumer reporting agency (your “file disclosure”). You will be required to provide proper identification, which may include your Social Security number. In many cases, the disclosure will be free. You are entitled to a free file disclosure if:
 - a person has taken adverse action against you because of information in your credit report;
 - you are the victim of identity theft and place a fraud alert in your file;
 - your file contains inaccurate information as a result of fraud;
 - you are on public assistance;
 - you are unemployed but expect to apply for employment within 60 days.

In addition, all consumers are entitled to one free disclosure every 12 months upon request from each nationwide credit bureau and from nationwide specialty consumer reporting agencies. See www.consumerfinance.gov/learnmore (<http://www.consumerfinance.gov/learnmore>) for additional information.

- You have the right to ask for a credit score. Credit scores are numerical summaries of your credit-worthiness based on information from credit bureaus. You may request a credit score from consumer reporting agencies that create scores or distribute scores used in residential real property loans, but you will have to pay for it. In some mortgage transactions, you will receive credit score information for free from the mortgage lender.
- You have the right to dispute incomplete or inaccurate information. If you identify information in your file that is incomplete or inaccurate, and report it to the consumer reporting agency, the agency must investigate unless your dispute is frivolous. See www.consumerfinance.gov/learnmore (<http://www.consumerfinance.gov/learnmore>) for an explanation of dispute procedures.
- Consumer reporting agencies must correct or delete inaccurate, incomplete, or unverifiable information. Inaccurate, incomplete, or unverifiable information must be removed or corrected, usually within 30 days. However, a consumer reporting agency may continue to report information it has verified as accurate.
- Consumer reporting agencies may not report outdated negative information. In most cases, a consumer reporting agency may not report negative information that is more than seven years old, or bankruptcies that are more than 10 years old.
- Access to your file is limited. A consumer reporting agency may provide information about you only to people with a valid need – usually to consider an application with a creditor, insurer, employer, landlord, or other business. The FCRA specifies those with a valid need for access.
- You must give your consent for reports to be provided to employers. A consumer reporting agency may not give out information about you to your employer, or a potential employer, without your written consent given to the employer. Written consent generally is not required in the trucking industry. For more information, go to www.consumerfinance.gov/learnmore (<http://www.consumerfinance.gov/learnmore>).
- You may limit “prescreened” offers of credit and insurance you get based on information in your credit report. Unsolicited “prescreened” offers for credit and insurance must include a toll-free phone number you can call if you choose to remove your name and address from the lists these offers are based on. You may opt out with the nationwide credit bureaus at 1-888-567-8688.
- The following FCRA right applies with respect to nationwide consumer reporting agencies:

CONSUMERS HAVE THE RIGHT TO OBTAIN A SECURITY FREEZE

You have a right to place a “security freeze” on your credit report, which will prohibit a consumer reporting agency from releasing information in your credit report without your express authorization. The security freeze is designed to prevent credit, loans, and services from being approved in your name without your consent. However, you should be aware that using a security freeze to take control over who gets access to the personal and financial information in your credit report may delay, interfere with, or prohibit the timely approval of any subsequent request or application you make regarding a new loan, credit, mortgage, or any other account involving the extension of credit.

As an alternative to a security freeze, you have the right to place an initial or extended fraud alert on your credit file at no cost. An initial fraud alert is a 1-year alert that is placed on a consumer’s credit file. Upon seeing a fraud alert display on a consumer’s credit file, a business is required to take steps to verify the consumer’s identity before extending new credit. If you are a victim of identity theft, you are entitled to an extended fraud alert, which is a fraud alert lasting 7

A security freeze does not apply to a person or entity, or its affiliates, or collection agencies acting on behalf of the person or entity, with which you have an existing account that requests information in your credit report for the purposes of reviewing or collecting the account. Reviewing the account includes activities related to account maintenance, monitoring, credit line increases, and account upgrades and enhancements.

- You may seek damages from violators. If a consumer reporting agency, or, in some cases, a user of consumer reports or a furnisher of information to a consumer reporting agency violates the FCRA, you may be able to sue in state or federal court.
- Identity theft victims and active duty military personnel have additional rights. For more information, visit www.consumerfinance.gov/learnmore (<http://www.consumerfinance.gov/learnmore>).

States may enforce the FCRA, and many states have their own consumer reporting laws. In some cases, you may have more rights under state law. For more information, contact your state or local consumer protection agency or your state Attorney General. For information about your federal rights, contact:

Katherine McKenna Brown

We have known Katie since she started Lincoln High School in 2010 with our son, Will. She and her family have been guests in our Portland home and Katie has joined us in Sunriver, too. We have spent a lot of time with Katie over the years since we first met her and feel like we know her personality well. She was a responsible guest and always helped out without being asked. She's entertaining to the kids and adults alike with her sense of humor and infectious laugh. She would let me know when she was in town visiting from Boston so we could get together for coffee or meet at the MAC for a class.

Katie is very conscientious and worked hard at the University of Oregon so she could apply to nursing school on the east coast. I love her story about carry the human skull around in a bag so she could learn the parts for an upcoming test!

Once she completed nursing school at Northeastern University, Katie stayed in Boston and was "low man on the totem pole" so had the rotating night shifts as a labor and delivery nurse. I never heard her complain about her schedule despite the physical toll it takes. She takes her responsibilities seriously and is a hard worker. After a while she switched to Outpatient Oncology at Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center. That kind of job administering chemotherapy medications requires knowledge, of course, but also kindness and compassion. Katie has always demonstrated both in the ways she treats her family and friends, and I'm sure her patients love her, too.

But we're thrilled to have Katie back in Portland soon. And she should definitely be a member at the MAC!

Dear MAC Membership Committee,

I have known Katie Brown both personally and professionally for over two years now. She is a kind, considerate, respectful, fun and all around great person. She is a wonderful friend. Katie is the type of person that you want to be near. In fact, she spent last Thanksgiving with my whole family and was adored by all. They are disappointed that she won't be joining us again this year since she is moving back to Oregon. Professionally, Katie and I work together as nurses on a chemotherapy infusion unit. She is well liked by staff and patients alike. She always goes the extra mile for everyone. Katie is responsible, trustworthy and hardworking. I highly recommend her for membership to the Multnomah Athletic Club. You will be lucky to have Katie as a part of your community.

Please feel free to contact me with any questions.

Respectfully Submitted,

Julie Blatchford
